The YP was one of four on their summer cruise. The YPs are used to teach familiarization with water craft, basic damage control, realistic underway instruction of basic to advanced seamanship and navigation to midshipmen from Annapolis, Md.

SECNAV links energy, national security

NWC Public Affairs Staff

Secretary of the Navy Ray Mabus spoke on the importance of pursuing alternative energy during a keynote speech June 8 at the Naval War College's 62nd annual Current Strategy Forum (CSF).

Mabus discussed how the Navy and Marine Corps have made strides towards seeking alternative energy sources, but must continue to push ahead to be less reliant on fossil fuels. This challenge, he said, is a strategic issue that is important to U.S. national security.

"We use too much fossil fuel," he said. "We have to change the way we use, produce, get energy. We

Special Olympian, Navy partners sail off to World Games

By BOB KREKORIAN

NAVSTA Public Affairs Staff

Three members of the Special Olympics Rhode Island sailing team, the Salty Dogs from Naval Station Newport, will compete as part of Team USA in the Special Olympics World Summer Games 2011, June 25 through July 4, in Athens, Greece.

Navy Lt. Mark Stines, an instructor at the Surface Warfare Officers School, will serve as a unified partner with Special Olympics sailing athlete Michael Heins, 41, of Middletown. Heins is the son of retired Navy Cmdr. Raymond and Mrs. Virginia Heins.

Stines has been involved with Special Olympics for two years. A unified partner is a volunteer who is paired up and trains with a Special Olympics sailing athlete for practices and regional competitions.

Stines and Heins started sailing together last year to prepare for the World Games, but a sprained ankle last fall prevented Stines from participating in the Special Olympics Rhode Island Sailing Regatta at Naval Station Newport.

'This will be his first trip to the Athens competition. This is an incredible opportunity for Michael.'

— Virginia Heins
mother of Special Olympian Mike Heins

In competition, Stines steers the sailboat and trims the mainsail. "Mike (Heins) and I work as a team," he said. Heins will trim the jib sail and point out other sailboats in the vicinity.

Both attended Team USA sailing practice in San Diego this spring.

Chief Builder Mike Arsenault, USNR, employed at the Naval War College, will serve as sailing coach. Arsenault has been a volunteer with Special Olympics for 21 years. For 12 years he was a unified partner with the Special Olympics Rhode Island sailing pro-

NWC faculty members visit Uruguay

Professors study security issues, joint cooperation

NWC Public Affairs Staff

Naval War College faculty members recently traveled to Uruguay at the request of USNAVSOUTH and the U.S.

Embassy, Montevideo, in support of U.S. Southern Command's theater security objective to promote regional joint service cooperation. The National Security Affairs Department teamed with the Center for Naval Warfare Studies' War Gaming faculty to present a comprehensive seminar on transforming national and military strategies to required capabilities and capacities.

Professors Warren "Whigs" Wiggins and Carl Schloemann from the War Gaming Department joined Larry McCabe from National Security Affairs to present a four-day series of lectures to a joint and interagency audience of 86 senior military officers and civilian officials from the Uruguayan Ministry of Defense. The series of lectures discussed the current security environment and the global economy as well

Fleet and Family Support Center

Learn to log off from Internet excess

EDITOR'S NOTE: Some of the Fleet and Family Support Center workshops and meetings require registration. Call 841-2283.

Are you trapped in an unhealthy relationship with an on-line contact. Is the World Wide Web too much of a good thing? Is being on-line causing you more problems than you realize?

The FFSC workshop, Caught in the Web, Disconnect Your Unhealthy Relationship, will be Tuesday, June 21, from 1 to 3 p.m. Learn how to assess Internet overuse and misuse and enhance your physical and emotional relationship as well as job well being.

Prepare for emergencies — Do you and your family know what to do in case of an emergency? Preparing in advance could keep an emergency from becoming a disaster for you and your family. The Fleet and Family Support Center will be holding a class on Disaster Preparedness for Families on Wednesday, June 22, from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Learn some simple steps to help you and your family be prepared.

Tips for car shoppers — So you want to buy a new car? An image of your dream car hovers in your mind — it is shiny, colorful, and purrs like a kitten. But, standing between you and your dream car is the car dealer.

How do you get the best car for a fair price? Come to the Fleet and Family Support Center on June 28 for the Car Buying Workshop from 2:30 to 4 p.m., to find out how to gather your resources and be well informed.

Sponsor Training — Sponsor Training will be held at FFSC on Tuesday, July 12, from 1 to 2 p.m. This training is a valuable tool for individuals who will act as sponsors or department representatives selecting sponsors. Because the military spouse also plays such a vital role in the Sponsor Program, all spouses are invited and encouraged to participate.

Effective resume essential — The Fleet and Family Support Center is offering this workshop on Thursday, July 14, 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. A resume is one of your most important tools when looking for a job.

Learn how to prepare an effective resume that will get you an interview. This workshop will cover what to include on your resume, which format to use, and other resume writing tips.

Manage that stress — The Stress Management workshop is scheduled for Thursday, July 21, from 1 to 3 p.m., at the Fleet and Family Support Center.

If you sometimes have problems coping with day-to-day situations, or just need some relief from stress on the job or at home, then this series of workshops is for you. Learn how to assess your stress level, increase stress relief skills to avoid burnout, and learn how to regain control of stressful situations.

Read your credit report — Learn about information on credit reports at the Fleet and Family Support Center on Tuesday, July 26, 2:30 to 4 p.m. Credit reports are used not only by banks, loan companies, and credit card companies, but also by rental property agencies, potential employers, and can be part of a job security clearance process.

Bring a copy of your credit report, available at www.annualcreditreport.com, to the class and find out how to read the report, understand it, and correct any errors you may find.

NUWC engineer recognized

NAVSEA Public Affairs

WASHINGTON (NNS) – A Naval Undersea Warfare Center electrical engineer was among 14 scientists and engineers from the Naval Surface Warfare Center (NSWC) and NUWC named winners of the 2010 Assistant Secretary of the Navy Dr. Delores M. Etter Top Scientists and Engineers Award on May 25.

Dr. Lynn T. Antonelli is a world leader in the science of remote, aerial sensing of underwater sound. Antonelli led ground-breaking efforts to redesign optical sensors used to detect underwater sounds from the air in 2010.

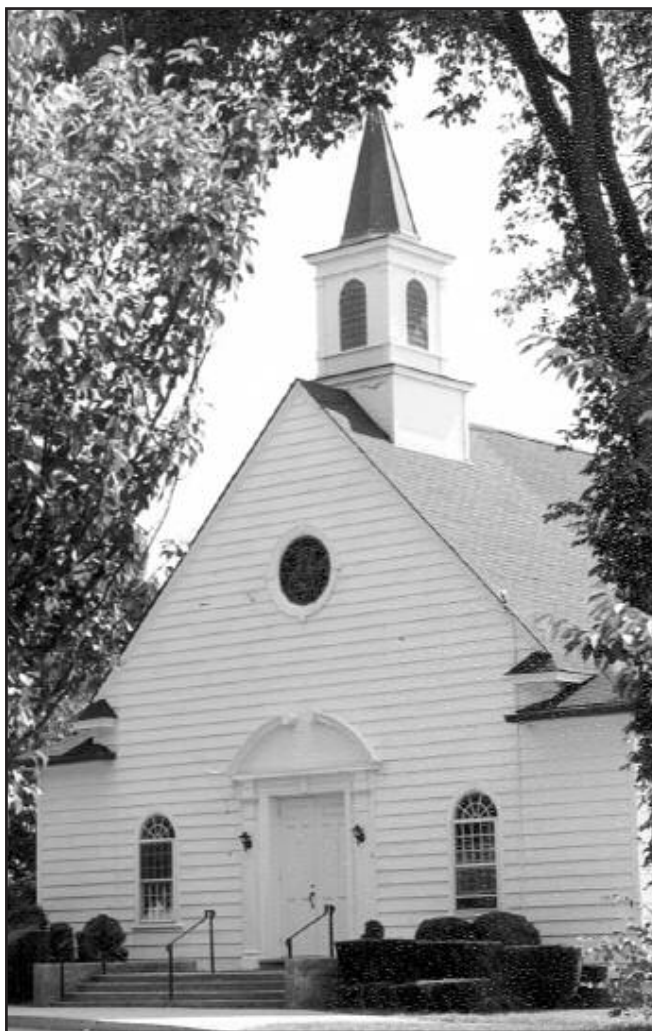

The patentable redesign gives the sensor the potential to detect underwater objects such as submarines, mines or incoming weapons from the air and for communications across the water surface, technology that could revolutionize Navy aircraft's role in sonar operations.

The 60-plus year-old chapel was relocated to Newport from the World War II Seabee training base in Davisville, R.I., in 1947 and reassembled off Cyprus Street. It was actively used until about 17 years ago. NAVSTA worship services are all held in The Chapel of Hope on Coddington Point.

'Challenges' await NWC graduates

Naval War College Public Affairs

Chief of Naval Operations (CNO) Adm. Gary Roughead encouraged Naval War College (NWC) graduates to use their knowledge and international relationships to answer the challenges of a rapidly changing world, during a commencement ceremony last Friday.

Speaking to 518 U.S. and international students in attendance, the CNO addressed the global challenges facing them, and said they're well positioned to lead in an uncertain world.

"Today is an opportunity to consider the environments to which you will return in short order — to your services, to your agencies, to your nation — to continue your promising careers and your contributions in our common interests for a more peaceful world," Roughead said.

Roughead referred to NWC as the Navy's "home of thought," and said that having the college as an institution where students from around the world converge "to study foreign policy, national strategy and military operations, with an eye toward the application of those disciplines to our collective security, stands as a signal that we will never stop searching for ways to prevail in peace, even if our world is becoming unstable with its growing complexity."

Sovereignty concerns, trade and economic realities, and the speed of the information age will greatly impact the world to come. Roughead cautioned that the pace at which events develop also will challenge our ability to anticipate local frictions. He pointed to recent events throughout the world that highlight the multilateral and multinational settings the graduates are returning to within their defense and security roles.

"We know from first-hand operational experience of the enduring value of relationships, we see the potential of global partnerships to address common tests, and we are in the business of preserving options, options that have always been explored first at our Naval War College," said Roughead.

For the graduates he sees "great opportunity - opportunity to shape and to lead, opportunity to bring to bear the benefits of the Naval War College perspective for the complexities of our time."

The resident graduating class included 303 members of the U.S. Navy, U.S. Marine Corps, U.S. Air Force, U.S. Army, U.S. Coast Guard, and civilian government employees and 126 international students from more than 60 countries. This year, 963 graduated from the College of Distance Education, after having completed coursework through the Naval War College Program at the Naval Postgraduate School in California, the Fleet Seminar

Program at 20 locations throughout the U.S., or the Naval War College's web-enabled and correspondence programs. Of those, 89 participated in the graduation ceremony.

NWC President Rear Adm. John N. Christenson noted an additional 205 students graduated during the course of the academic year, and the combined number of graduates totaled 1,595, the largest class in the college's 127-year history.

Students earned Joint Professional Military Education (JPME) credit and either a diploma or a Master of Arts degree in National Security and Strategic Studies, accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

As part of the ceremony, Christenson bestowed upon Roughead an honorary Master of Arts degree in recognition of his naval service and commitment to the college and the nation.

Chaplains find BibleStick effective

Pocket audio device with New Testament serve spiritual needs

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (NNS) — When Faith Comes By Hearing (FCBH) began their military outreach in early 2008, with an initial production of 1,000 Military BibleSticks, nobody at the ministry had any idea what the project would grow into.

A little more than three years later, they have gone from honoring a request from a handful of chaplains for a "deployment-ready version" of their standard BibleStick to fulfilling requests from over 700 chaplains for these small, portable audio devices that come pre-loaded with the entire dramatized New Testament.

All told, the world's foremost Audio Bible ministry has shipped more than 123,000 Military BibleSticks to chaplains serving America's troops around the globe.

"The continued requests from chaplains has been totally amazing," said Jon Wilke, spokesman for the project. "We really haven't done a lot of advertising; yet through word of mouth – from chaplain to chaplain – this (project) has just spread like wildfire."

Wilke, a veteran who served in both the U.S. Marine Corps and the U.S. Army, reports a backorder for the BibleSticks that has averaged over 10,000 during the last year, with a high of 21,000 in October 2010.

"Chaplains in the military don't have huge budgets for ministry tools, so they depend on organizations such as Faith Comes By Hearing," said Wilke.

"Fortunately, individual donors and an out-pouring of support from church partners across America have come together to bless them with BibleSticks free of charge."

Over the last year and a half, Christian radio and their loyal listeners have also contributed to funding the project.

The ministry's $25 ask, or cost per unit, covers the audio player and ear buds, an additional Audio Bible on MP3 disc, and of course the ancillary packaging and shipping costs. However, the package also comes with a postage-paid postcard that the service men and women can return with requests for additional MP3 discs to be sent to their spouse and children at home.

As Wilke said, "It is important to the ministry that the spiritual needs of our troops and their entire family be met."

Faith Comes By Hearing is a nearly 40-year-old non-profit, Audio Bible ministry which currently has word-for-word, New Testament recordings available in 546 languages that are spoken by over 5 billion people in nearly every country of the world.

Special Olympian Mike Heins, left, celebrates while unified sailing partner Lt. Mark Stines steers their sailboat at Team USA's Training Camp in Mission Bay, San Diego recently. They will leave Saturday to participate in the Special Olympics World Summer Games in Athens, Greece.

gram. He competed as a unified partner in sailing during the 2003 and 2007 World Games.

"Taking part in the Special Olympics World Games is amazing," Arsenault said. Entering a stadium with 70,000 cheering spectators allows the athletes to experience something very few people get to do, he said.

Team USA delegations will depart for Greece on June 18, and arrive in the host town on the island of Rhodes. Following a rest day, morning training activities for the teams will be held in Rhodes, June 21 to 24, prior to the start of competition. Sightseeing trips are planned for the afternoons. More than 7,000 Special Olympians from 185 nations will compete in 21 Olympic-type sports.

"Being involved with Special Olympics has given me a new appreciation for helping others," Stines said.

"Through Special Olympics I have made great friends and have had great experiences," Arsenault said. "I know that all people want to be accepted for who they are," he said.

Heins is employed by the James L. Maher Center where he delivers lunches to the courthouse and does janitorial work. He has participated in Special Olympics for 30 years, competing in aquatics, athletics, bowling and sailing.

"This will be his first trip to the Athens competition," said Virginia Heins. This is an incredible opportunity for Michael, she said.

"Special Olympics has changed his life by giving him experience in competition, supporting others, winning and losing, individual achievement, and learning to be part of a team," she said.

"I have never underestimated the ability or desire of someone who wants to succeed," Arsenault said. It's made me a better person, he said.

NUWC are the Navy's principal research, development, test and evaluation, analysis and assessment activities for ship and submarine platforms, including machinery technology for surface and submarine combat systems, ordnance, mines, and strategic systems products and support.

"Our men and women do some truly incredible, important work," said Vice Adm. Kevin McCoy, commander NAVSEA.

"These awards reflect the invaluable contributions provided by our warfare center scientists, researchers and engineers – not only to NAVSEA, the Navy and Department of Defense, but also to our global community."

The award was named in honor of Dr. Delores M. Etter who previously served as Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Research, Development and Acquisition. Etter initiated the award during her tenure in recognition of those who have reached superior technical achievements and promoted scientific and engineering excellence.

have to do it strategically, we have to do it tactically."

Every dollar rise in the price of a barrel of oil costs the Navy and Marine Corps $31 million, he said, noting that oil-price increases in fiscal year 2011 will result in a $562 million addition to the operating budget of both services - more than the cost of a littoral combat ship.

"We don't have that money to spare. We certainly don't have it to spare in this fiscal environment," he said.

The reliance on fossil fuels affects the Navy and Marine Corps at the tactical level as well. He used the complex process to transport fuel to Afghanistan as a costly example, from monetary costs to manpower resources, to lives lost in attacks while providing security.

To combat this issue, the secretary issued five energy goals, one of which is to ensure at least half of all energy used by the Navy and Marine Corps will come from non-fossil fuels no later than 2020. This type of challenge, he said, is not new to services that transitioned from sails to coal-fired steam in the 19th century, switched to oil 50 years later, and then added nuclear power to the fleet in the 1950s.

"I think we're right on the edge of another energy revolution," Mabus said, pointing out how quickly such change happens. He compared the potential for energy developments with the recent emergence of iPads, smart phones and other devices transforming the way we communicate.

Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Gary Roughead, said the Navy must continue to seek alternative energy sources to meet operational demands.

"Our Navy has been positioned exceedingly well to answer the nation's needs as a joint, interagency and international partner in a more networked world, but forward presence requires fuel," Roughead stated. "Whether we see the new energy options we pursue today to fruition will affect how well we contend with growing operational demand at the same time the sustainability of our force is confronted in new ways."

Lt. Gen. George J. Flynn, U.S. Marine Corps, Commanding General, Marine Corps Combat Development Command, also spoke about energy independence.

"From our non-commissioned officers to our general officers, we must be aware, we must be engaged and we must be accountable for our energy use," said Flynn. "It is about training modern-day Marine Spartans to understand that a resource efficient Marine is a more combat effective Marine."

as the complex process of translating strategic interests to programmatic capabilities and capacities.

Uruguay is one of several countries with which the Naval War College has established strong relationships in the USSOUTHCOM region. In addition to NSA and War Gaming, the International Law Department, S&P and JMO also engage routinely with the region in support of the regional combatant commander's theater security objectives.

Blue Angels airborne again

PENSACOLA, Fla. (NNS) — The Navy Flight Demonstration Squadron, the Blue Angels, will resume all previously scheduled performances for the 2011 season beginning with the Quad City Air Show in Davenport, Iowa, June 18-19.

(The squadron will perform at the R.I. National Guard Open House and Air Show at Quonset, R.I., on June 25-26. See Special Events column, Page 8.)

During the past two weeks, the Blue Angels completed rigorous training and air show demonstration practice to integrate Capt. Greg McWhorter, the new commanding officer and flight leader, back into the flight demonstration team.

The Blue Angels plan to continue to represent the Navy and Marine Corps service members around the world, the Navy said.

Navywide news

Navy revises ERB process

WASHINGTON (NNS) — Responding to requests made to the chief of naval personnel (CNP) during his visit to the operating forces in Fifth Fleet, the Navy announced changes and clarification to the Enlisted Retention Board (ERB), June 9.

NAVADMIN 180/11 extends the deadline for Sailors to request a rating conversion and updates how these requests will be considered. Additionally, the new message provides eligibility clarification for Sailors not scheduled for Perform-to-Serve (PTS) adjudication in fiscal year 2012, and creates an additional exemption for Sailors enrolled in or selected for commissioning programs.
